

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electronic camera that generates a still image by photographing a subject, generates image information 5 related to the still image having a data volume smaller than a data volume of the still image and records the still image and the image information, includes: a frame feed reproduction device that sequentially reproduces a plurality of still images recorded in advance; a high-speed frame feed reproduction device that sequentially 10 displays a plurality of sets of image information recorded in advance; and a switching device that selects either the frame feed reproduction device or the high-speed frame feed reproduction device to switch between the frame feed 15 reproduction device and the high-speed frame feed reproduction device.